Profile:

Ginny Cascio Bonifacino is Of Counsel with McMillan Metro, P.C., and primarily focuses on corporate, employment, and intellectual property law, as well as artist's rights and nonprofit law. Previously, she worked for McMillan Metro – as an associate and Of Counsel – for several years before moving to the San Francisco Bay Area. While in California, she worked for a local firm handling corporate, employment and intellectual property matters. In the past, Ginny worked with the President of the Chicago History Museum and General Counsel of the National Endowment of the Arts in Washington D.C. on a variety of business, employment, and intellectual property issues. She also clerked for Judge Glenn T. Harrell of the Maryland Court of Appeals and Judge Richard Cudahy of the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit. While in law school, Ginny earned a Certificate in Intellectual Property: Arts and Museum law. Through the DePaul University Technology/Intellectual Property Clinic, she had the opportunity to advise clients on copyright and trademark issues, and continues to pursue her interests in helping artists by performing pro bono work through the Washington Area Lawyers for the Arts. Ginny's clients rely on her to analyze issues, create strategies, and find the most practical approaches to solving their legal problems.
